Lea is a Manager for Fenix Financial Forensics LLC (F3) who provides litigation and financial consulting services involving engineering and construction, healthcare and other general commercial areas. Lea's general experience includes providing forensic accounting services related to contract compliance, internal controls, fraud investigations, claims and disputes, computation of damages, and preparation of expert witness reports for litigation and arbitration proceedings.

Lea specializes in financial contract compliance services, dispute advisory services, and financial investigations, with an emphasis on long-term contracting, capital asset construction projects, and the quantification of commercial damages. Lea's work has involved the quantification and rebuttal of commercial damages resulting from breaches of contract and construction project-related damages, including terminations, delays, disruptions, accelerations, scope changes, differing site conditions and general cost overruns. Lea also performs project management for active construction projects. Her financial contract compliance and project management services include construction project cost audit activities for project owners.
